PORTSMOUTH GIRL ESCAPED FROM THE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

Manchester, April 27.—The frequency of breaks among the inmates of the state industrial school has been accentuated by the escape of seven girls, five of whom are still at large, with no clue as to their whereabouts. Four of the girls have homes in Manchester, one resides in Portsmouth, another in Dover and another in Derry.

The break occurred Friday night, after the minstrel show held at the school, and although nearly four days have since elapsed, the school officials have been enabled to secure but two of the runaways. It is claimed by those familiar with breaks of this kind that had publicity been given to the break through newspapers instead of adhering to a policy of secrecy, that the runaways would have been recaptured long before this time.

The escaped persons are as follows:

Alice Lessard, Odella Dugas, Eva Lefebvre and Rossana Bellard, all of Manchester.

Lena Roberts of Derry.
Tenna Thomas of Dover.
Catherine Littlefield of Portsmouth.
The Lefebvre and Bellard girls have been recaptured. They were found at their homes in this city, but the others have made good their escape to date.

The girls are reported to have got away through the carelessness in not securing one of the doors.

THE WEATHER

Wednesday night and Thursday—Fair with variable winds and moderate temperature.

The Herald last night was the talk of the city. It was full of exclusive local news.

KILLED HIS WIFE WITH AN AXE

A Manchester Man Also a Suicide in a Fit of Insanity

Concord, April 27.—Herman W. Clough, switchman in the Boston and Maine railroad yards here, killed his wife, Annie J., with an axe in their home, 61 North Spring street, about 4:30 p. m. Tuesday, and immediately afterward took his own life by plunging a carving knife into his throat. Clough was 48 years old and his wife 47.

The tragedy was the work of a man whose mind had been unbalanced by loss of sleep and anxiety over the condition of his invalid wife, and took place in the presence of a 15-year-old daughter, Edith, who is an only child, and a pupil in the high school, and two nurses.

Clough was a man of exemplary habits. He had complained recently about being deprived of sleep by his wife's illness, and a few nights ago went to the police station and asked permission to lie down in one of the cells, which he did.

He had been lying down on Tuesday afternoon, and about 4:30 o'clock suddenly appeared in the room on the ground floor where his wife was dying in bed. According to the statement of Miss Hodge, a nurse in attendance upon Mrs. Clough, he was clad only in his shirt and went directly to the woodshed where he secured an axe. Miss Hodge was frightened as she saw him approaching with the axe in his hand and closing the door she unsuccessfully attempted to prevent his entrance.

He went at once to the bed, without a word struck his wife a terrible blow on the left side of her head, killing her almost instantly.

Resenting interference on the part of the nurse Clough turned upon Miss Hodge and tried to strike her with the ax. She pushed him away, however, and with the daughter Edith made her escape to the yard.

Clough returned to his room after killing his wife, and the nurse alarmed his neighbors.

When the neighbors came he fled to his room and cut his throat with a huge knife and died almost instantly.

Clough was born in Salem, Mass., and came to Concord in 1879. After a year at school he entered the employ of the railroad, where he continued till his death.

His wife was Miss Annie Johnson, a native of Farmington, N. H., and a daughter of John G. Johnson, once high sheriff of Strafford county. A brother, James Johnson, is a baggage master on the railroad between Boston and Stoneham.

HAVE YOU BEEN COUNTED?

Have you been enumerated yet?

Has the census man or the woman as the case may be been around to your house thus far and if so did he or she get you and your pedigree down fine? The work of the enumerators is drawing to a close as they had only two weeks beginning April 15th. The city enumerators are said to be doing well although in some cases they undoubtedly missed some people by reason of calling at times when no one happened to be at home who could give the required information.

The Herald hears of one case in which the enumerator called at a three family house and the family in one tenement were all out. He was given such facts about them as the other people in the house could give; but did not get it all and will have to call again. It may be that in many cases like this slips will occur and some may possibly be missed who ought to be counted in order to make the population of Portsmouth what it ought to be. Nobody wants to fat it up any more than it really is, but on the other hand we are entitled to a full count of all the people who really are here and who belong here and ought to be patriotic enough to see to it that their names are counted.

Another possible case is one in which a young man changed his boarding place recently. The house to which he went had been enumerated before he got there, while the house he left had not been. In consequence that particular young man might not be counted.

These people are all rightly entitled to be counted in the quota of Portsmouth and all should make sure they have been counted.

If you haven't been counted call the attention of your enumerator to the fact.

Every good citizen wants to see the tabulation of the population of this city made as large as it really is. If you have been left out through any oversight or for any other reason you should take immediate steps to see that you are counted. To swell the population of your city and your state to show that we are keeping pace with the rest of the country is of material importance to every man, woman and child in this city. The figures which the census bureau are now obtaining will stand against the name Portsmouth on all the tables for the next ten years.

The tabulation is supposed to be completed on Thursday night of this week. If you have not been counted in the meantime then the census report will show just one less than it would if you paid some attention to the filling out of the coupon.

Alienation Case in Superior Court

A Cruelty Case in the Police Court

Latest Athletic Items from Philips Academy

The Foresters of America Will Celebrate Anniversary

Exeter, April 27.—The alienation case of Ernest E. Dexter against Geo. L. Rowe was continued in superior court Tuesday, the forenoon being devoted to a wrangle between the attorneys. In the afternoon the case was stated to the jury by James P. Tuttle of Manchester, attorney for the plaintiff. He stated that Dexter was born Aug. 31, 1875, and came to Canada at the age of 11 years. He was at one time employed by the American Express company, and also traveled on the road. His wife, Ora Dexter, was born in Canada, where she was educated. They were married Aug. 31, 1899. Rowe, the defendant, is also a native of Canada. During Mr. Tuttle's address he stated that Mr. and Mrs. Dexter lived happily in their little home until within six or eight months before a startling incident came to light between Mrs. Dexter and Geo. L. Rowe. Mr. Dexter went to work early in the store and worked till late at night. Mrs. Dexter seemed to be an affectionate wife till two or three years ago, when suddenly there was a change in her manner. She seemed to be abstracted and her thoughts were apparently far away. Her explanations to her husband were varied. One night he came home from work and there was a delay in opening the door. Mrs. Dexter finally appeared and seemed excited and was flushed. He said nothing at the time about it. In May, 1908, something occurred which aroused a quarrel between the husband and wife. He charged her with unfaithfulness, and the result was they had a very stormy time. There was a serious break in their family affairs. They had a war of words, and as a result some time in June he had a talk with his father also a further talk with his wife, and as a result the family affairs went on more smoothly for a time. But soon there were more discoveries which resulted in more trouble and more loud talk, so loud, in fact, that the neighbors came in. "Some time in November he had a talk with a lawyer, and affairs went on more smoothly for a time again, but in December it was the same old story. There were meetings arranged between Mrs. Dexter and Rowe at various places. The climax was reached when a party broke into the home one night and found them in a compromising condition on a couch. Justice of the Peace Plunders, who was one of the party, at the request of Mr. Dexter at that time placed Rowe under arrest, and after that a suit was brought. Several witnesses were put on the stand and court adjourned at 5 o'clock. There was a large audience in the court room. Mr. Dexter, father of the plaintiff, was on the stand, and was examined by Attorney Tuttle and cross examined by Attorney Ernest L. Guphill.

Herbert Barker was the respondent before Judge Shute in police Tuesday afternoon, charged with abusing and ill treating a horse which he hired from Flynn's livery stable on Sunday. Barker and Lester Sargent went to Epping, where they used the animal so roughly that they were complained of, and on Monday Sargent was fined, but Barker could not be found. Tuesday morning it was reported that he was in Newfields, and word was sent to arrest him there, which was done by Officer Jesse S. Gray. He was brought here by Deputy Sheriff Otis Tilton, and tried before Judge Shute in the afternoon. The whip which, it was alleged, he broke over the animal was brought in for evidence. Howard O. Nelson of Portsmouth appeared against the respondent. Judge Shute imposed a fine on Barker amounting to $25.00, which seemed to stagger the respondent. He was committed to the lockup till his friends come to the decision whether or no they will settle. In case of non-payment, he goes to the house of correction. It was the heaviest fine imposed for a long time, and came to the offender as a genuine surprise.

The date of the Exeter-Harvard freshmen dual track meet has been changed to Saturday, April 30, and the Yale freshmen basketball game will be played here on Friday afternoon instead of Saturday, as given out on the schedule. The date had been pending for some time, and by a consent of the faculty to play Friday afternoon, it has been definitely settled for that date. Mr. Connors hopes to have warm sunny weather this week for him to groom up his proteges for the Harvard meet. The men are, however, in excellent condition for this early date, and it would not be surprising to see some of the old marks go by the board. Mr. Walsh finds no fault with the team for being defeated Saturday, as they were against their superiors. It is too early for predictions, but the coach says he has better material than he has had for the past two years. The next game is today with the New Hampshire college, and then Yale '13 comes Friday. No athletic practice was held Tuesday afternoon on account of the rain, but the boys hope for good weather today to tackle New Hampshire college. The State college was defeated last year 5 to 3. They have a strong team this year and Exeter will be compelled to play ball all the time to win. The line up will be Donovan C. Litchfield, Lissard or Waterman P. Frye 1b, Fox 2b, Captain Wingate 3b, Hennessy or Shackley, ss, Walsh lf, Curtis, and Tidgewell rf. The members of Court Wheelwright Foresters of America, will informally observe the anniversary of the order at the town hall this evening. The program will consist of an informal social gathering, with instrumental and vocal selections. Charles H. Kidd, Emmanuel Gallant, the Misses Margaret and Nellie Callahan and James Timmins will render vocal selections, and a piano solo will be rendered by Miss Lillian Timmins. The affair will conclude with a farce, "The Duchess of Duplin." Dancing will follow, music being furnished by the Xenian orchestra. It is to be an invitation affair.

The engineers made no request for increase in wages, but asked a readjustment of the men's working schedules.

Nothing was given out as to the details of the agreement, it being stated that the new schedules were technical and of little general interest.

DOVER DOINGS

Dover, April 27.—The sixth annual speaking contest for the Perkins gold medal, which is presented to the pupil of the high school showing the greatest excellence in oratory, will take place Friday evening. The contests have been held ever since 1905, the recipient of the first medal being Miss Lavina Meader. The winners in the years following have been respectively, Miss Eva Stacey, Donald B. Keyes, Miss Inez G. Leighton and Miss Bertha Doyle. For the last few years the medal has been awarded by popular vote of the audience, but this was not found quite satisfactory, owing to a tendency on the part of the classmates and students to vote for their favorites, regardless of anything else. The medal will be awarded this year by a committee of three persons from out of town.

The death of Elizabeth, wife of J. Tuttle, occurred Tuesday at her home at Sawyer's, at the age of 53 years. Besides a husband, she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Mamie Slye and Miss Viola Tuttle, a fireman on the Boston and Maine; two brothers, Thomas W. of this city and James of Albuquerque, N. PENSION AGENCY QUESTION

Annual Contest Between House and Senate Begun

Washington, April 27.—The annual contest between the senate and the house over the question of abolishing the eighteen pension agencies scattered throughout the United States, and to centralize the work in one agency to the situated in this city, was begun Tuesday.

As in the last several years, the house appropriated for only one agency, and Tuesday the senate committee on pension reported a provision to retain all of the existing agencies. The appropriation bill as reported would carry $158,858,000 about $5,000,000 less than last year. The report of the senate committee says that it is no new pension legislation is enacted, the decrease next year will be considerably greater.

SCHOONER PULLED OFF

Six Master George W. Wells on Richmond Island

Portland, Me., April 27.—Captain York of the six-masted schooner George W. Wells reports a trying experience off the southwest end of Richmond Island at 4.30 a. m. Tuesday. The ship was running in a dense fog and struck. The shock aroused everybody, all rushing on deck to find a high sea rolling and a prospect of work if not real danger.

Two Kedge anchors were put over and after working an hour the schooner was pulled into deep water with her own hoisting engines. Capt. Yorke said he used 500 fathoms of chain to pull her away from the island and that it was the hardest trip from Philadelphia to Portland he ever made.

Theatrical Topics

"Havana" on Friday

"Havana," the successful musical comedy in which James T. Powers will appear in this city on Friday was originally written for George Edwards who produced it at the Gaiety theatre in London, where it ran for a long time.

Mr. Edwards is the most successful producer of musical plays in the United Kingdom.

When Mr. Powers was looking for a new play to succeed "The Blue Moon," he dropped into the Gaiety theatre, London, one day to see "Havana." Although in the form he saw it it would not do at all for America; the comedian thought he saw a possibility in the piece if he could write it.

Negotiations were entered into at once through which the Shuberts secured the American rights to "Havana."

The book was turned over to Mr. Powers who completely rewrote it and to such effect that it scored an instantaneous hit when produced at the New York Casino two seasons ago.

In "Havana" Mr. Powers has one of the biggest successes of his career and it is a Jimmy Powers success more than anything else.

PEPPERRELL MEMORIAL

Pamphlet Advocating His Name as One of the Famous Americans

We are in receipt of a memorial to Sir William Pepperrell, sixteen pages, in support of the nomination of Sir William Pepperrell to be inscribed in the Hall of Fame for Great Americans. It is published by the Pepperrell Association. The names that have up to this time been inscribed in the Hall of Fame, with one exception that of Jonathan Edwards, are men who achieved their fame after the Declaration of Independence—among them Washington, Franklin, Jefferson and Adams.

With Sir William Pepperrell's name inscribed in the Hall of Fame and given to one of the new Canadian cruisers, would be fitting tributes to his memory by both of these countries.

WANT MILK BOTTLED

Manchester Committee Considering That Method

Manchester, April 27.—The aldermanic committee on public health the health officials of the city and the milk producers met in conference last night in city hall to consider amendments to the city ordinances asked by the board of health relative to the supply of milk. It is proposed to amend the city ordinances so that milk must be kept in sealed bottles except in hotels and restaurants.

George H. Wiggin of Bedford was the chief speaker for the milk producers. He said it would cost an additional cent a quart to supply groceries with milk in bottles. The health officials took the ground that this advance price would be economy to the consumers as health would follow where disease had oftentimes been distributed.

BIG CELEBRATION GIVEN UP

Funds Lacking for Large Centennial at Manchester

Manchester, April 28.—Plans to observe in a large way the centennial of the city's adoption of its name were abandoned last night by a committee of eighteen, representing the city government, board of trade and the historic association, with Mayor Reed presiding. The subcommittee reported that the funds were too scanty and it was not deemed advisable to canvass the merchants for more. The $2000 set aside for the celebration will be left in the city treasury, to use as the city council may determine.

The centennial will probably be observed in a modest way by the historic association.

ROOSEVELT GETS FIRST TICKET

Denver, April 27.—The first ticket for the fight between Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson at San Francisco on July 4 will be presented to Theodore Roosevelt on his arrival in New York. This statement was made by Jack Gleason while in Denver on his way to the coast.

SUMMER STYLES

Strange and Weird cloths for This Year

New York, April 27.—Unusual attractive lines of silk piece goods are offered for the summer trade across retail counters, and the assortments are constantly growing. Black and white effects are becoming very fashionable, and small black and white checks are proving excellent fabrics. Amongst the latest ideas of French origin are mixed effects in gray mauve silk suitings with the colors clearer and brighter than those which have been worn during the past few seasons.

Among the latest French shades which have taken well for the spring season in the Paris market are Bleuet, a clear full blue; Frangendant, a soft greenish blue, and for evening wear, Syringer, a delicate orchid pink. Other shades are Chadrone, burnt copper; Peridot, a soft yellowish green; Mastique, or putty green. China yellow and shades of warm nut browns are also new, while shades of ink blue are being extensively used in light, sheer fabrics. Other shades which are considered promising are mauve, old rose and saxo blue.

The last Rosland play has served to popularize bright reds and orange shades, in the Paris market, and it is safe to say that the French manufacturers have run the entire gamut of the barnyard. A slight idea of the colors produced can be had from the following: Frog, guinea hen, wild cat, cockspur, owl, butterfly, pheasant, hen, blue jay, peacock, chantecler, rising sun, blackbird and other shades too numerous to mention.

For spot delivery foulards and shantung are the most popular fabrics in the silk market. Importations of natural shantung from China are being received in large quantities, and many fancy weaves from Lyons, in cheviot, herringbone, natte and a still newer idea called the lique weave. Crepe weaves are decidedly fashionable, and one of the latest novelties consists of Chinese silk having a crepe finish, which can be used in both double and single width suitable for both costumes and evening wear. In the foulard lines soft twill and peau de sole grounds are moving freely, while one of the latest fabrics to meet the popular favor is the radium weave.

For tailored costumes diagonal serge foulards are moving with much success. Satin foulards with oval prints, with small squares and spots are also reported to be meeting with a very fair demand. Some of these effects are shown with neat borders. Another novelty of the current season consists of cashmere printings for combination with plain fabrics. Up to date the heaviest business in foulard has been done on small spots, checker geometrical devices and grille checks. Shot effects are coming more into favor and are to be found in many of the latest Paris costumes. For producing the shot effects in these costumes, fine transparent silk crepes and crepons are being used. Many of the latest French fabrics show a very strong inclination toward the shot effect idea, such as shot moire, satins, taffetas, paillettes, and also in chiffons, minous and marquisettes.

GRAND CIRCUIT

Great Horse Races Are Likely to be Few

Developments of the past week, or rather the absence of them, indicate beyond all doubt that, so far as the Eastern end is concerned, there will be no Grand Circuit racing this season. President Harry K. Doreaux of the Grand Circuit stewards had hoped that the return of Buffalo would eventually mean that the promoters of the race meetings at Readville, Charter Oak and New York would experience a change of heart and decided to "take chances." But for numerous and obvious reasons, neither Andy Welsh nor any of his associates have any such intention. It may be authoritatively stated that 1910 will pass without the Grand Circuit horses, as such, getting any farther into the Eastern country than Syracuse, N. Y.

Whatever racing will be seen at Readville, in addition to the meetings of the Gentlemen's Driving Club, will be of the one-day variety, unless, of course, the League of Amateur Drivers has its annual gold cup inter-city matinee over the mile course in September. That there will be an afternoon of trotting rather than of auto-mobiling at Readville on July 4th seems reasonably certain, provided Welsh continues his present state of mind.

The shrinking away of the eastern end of the grand circuit has brought out several arguments and inquiries as to the formation of the grand circuit and the number of years it has been in existence. The grand circuit, as such, was launched back in 1873, but its original membership was by no means the same as that of last year. Contrary to general belief, New York was not a grand circuit city until 1888, although several big meetings had previously been given at historic Fleetwood. Then, after a rather trying experience, the metropolis dropped out of line. Charter Oak gave its first grand circuit meeting in 1876, and continued without interruption until 1893, when there came a break of four years, after which Andy Welsh took hold of the game there and put Charter Oak on the map again. Readville became a grand circuit lingering point in 1896, immediately following the opening of the track.

Whatever may be the future of the Grand Circuit—and no horseman would wish to see it lose its identity—it is certainly in a tottering position at the present time and even as good an organizer as Mr. Derereaux will hardly be able to prop it up. Including the curtain raiser at Grand Rapids four weeks of great racing are promised right off the reel. But after the horsemen have left Cleveland following the meeting at Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo and Detroit, the rub will come. With the red tape involved in shipping American trotters across the border line for races at Fort Erie track, a number of the stables are sure to fight rather shy of entering there, particularly when there is nothing doing farther East. Instead, they will tuck on to the great western circuit and whether they can be brought back again after a month's absence to Syracuse is causing the New York state fair management a whole lot of worry, particularly since Syracuse cannot, of course, offer the pooling privileges that horsemen enjoy.

AT DARTMOUTH

The annual banquet and reception tendered the graduates of the Tuck and Thayer schools was held Tuesday evening in College hall, the banquet taking place in the Commons being immediately followed by a reception in the alumni rooms of College hall followed by the presentation of diplomas. President Nichols presided at the banquet and besides the members of the graduating classes of both schools, there were present as guests former President Tucker, the overseers of the Tuck and Thayer schools including Gen. Henry L. Abbott, LL. D., of Cambridge, Mass., Jonathan P. Snow of Boston, Prof. Gustav J. Piobegor of West Point, N. Y., and Otis E. Hovey of New York; the treasurer of the college, Charles P. Chase, and the secretary of the college, Ernest M. Hopkins.

The banquet was held at 7 o'clock, at the completion of which toasts were responded to by nearly all the guests, and various members of the graduating classes. In the receiving line were President Nichols, the overseers of the schools and the treasurer and secretary of the college. At the conclusion of the reception, President Nichols gave out the diplomas. Among the speakers of the evening were President Nichols, General Abner T. Darnmouth baseball team opened its home season Tuesday on alumni oval, defeating Bowdoin, 5 to 1. The diamond was in poor condition on account of the heavy rain, and errors were frequent. Mitchell, who was in the box for the home team, allowed five hits, while Darnmouth found Hobbs for only four. Mitchell was rather wild at the beginning, but settled down as the game progressed. Darnmouth put three men over the plate in the fourth inning. Norton reached first on an error, went to second on Daley's single and scored on a wild throw. Emerson singled and Daley went to second. Daley took third and Emerson second on a poor throw, and both scored on a passed ball. Bowdoin scored its lone run in the sixth on a two bagger, an out and a single. Dartmouth added two more in the seventh on a base on balls and three errors. The teams will play again today.

A SHOOTING AT WINCHESTER

Keene, April 27.—James Moseka of Winchester was brought to this city on Tuesday and taken to the Elliot City hospital to be cared for. He had been shot in the head and leg by another Pole that morning.

It appears that Ignace Penger of Winchester, an employee of the tannery, got up early to go fishing. He found that his dispoise was gone and charged Moseka with stealing it. He finally shot Moseka, one bullet striking his head and another one in his leg.

Penger was arrested and arraigned before Judge Davis in Winchester police court, charged with assault with intent to kill. Through his counsel, Charles A. MacDon of Keene, he pleaded not guilty and waived examination. He was bound over to the superior court in bonds of $1000, which he was able to furnish.

Moseka is reported to be doing quite well at the hospital, although he has a bad scalp wound and an ugly wound in the leg.

PEARY SAILS FOR EUROPE

He Will Receive Honors from Geographical Societies

New York, April 27.—Commander Robert E. Peary sailed on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie on Tuesday for a lecture tour of England and the continent. He is accompanied by Mrs. Peary and their two children and by Capt. Robert A. Bartlett, the Newfoundland skipper who commanded the Arctic ship Roosevelt on the trip to the north pole.

"I shall be away only about six weeks," he said just before sailing. "I expect to be back in New York harbor on June 10. I shall deliver my first lecture in London on May 4."

His London address will be delivered before the Royal Geographical society. On that occasion the society will present a gold medal to him and a silver medal to Captain Bartlett. In Rome on May 20 the commander will receive another gold medal.

The greatest geographical societies of Europe will honor the explorer in the course of his visit.

TWO BIG FREIGHT SHEDS

Boston, April 27.—Two big freight sheds being built by the Boston and Maine railroad in East Cambridge for use in connection with its Minot street house will considerably enlarge the facilities for handling the freight and will also permit all of the Southern division freight, both inbound and out-bound, to be handled at one point.

At present much of the inward-bound freight is received and distributed at the Rutherford avenue houses. The change will enable this station to be used for freight for other divisions.

One of the new houses will be on Bridge street, and the other will parallel it, with a 50-foot roadway between. Each shed will be one-story, 40 feet wide, and one will be 556 in length and the other 756.

VAN HORNE RESIGNS

Montreal, April 27.—Sir William Van Horne has resigned as chairman of the board of directors of the Canadian Pacific railway. The position, he explains, is merely a nominal one and has led to confusion, as in Great Britain the chairman of the board is really the active head of the company. He will retain his seat on the board.

THE DANGER OF ROOSEVELT

Does His career Mark the Wane of Our Popular Government?

Do we want and do we need Theodore Roosevelt back in the White House, the time-limit lifted, re-commissioned to give us four, eight or twenty years of the kind of administration he gave us during the seven years of his occupancy? Because that, and that alone, is the meaning of the moving-picture show, which, begun with Non-Killing in Africa and continued with King-taming in Europe, is to culminate with a homecoming to surpass that of Dewey, down the bay and along the waterfront and through the streets of the city of New York.

Can any man be so foolish as to suppose that, behind all this, lies not some definite scheme and purpose, backed and impelled by carefully laid intelligent and amply financed organization? Do men like Theodore Roosevelt put themselves to such pains for nothing, but empty display? Does such a tour de force, come by chance, or is it planned and prearranged far ahead by keen foresight and skillful stagecraft? Why Africa in the first place? Then, if Cairo needs must be, why Rome? Why Vienna and Budapest? Why Berlin? Why Paris? Why London? And, finally, not Napoleon from Elba, but Caesar after the invasion of Gaul, why a fete, national in character, to bid the conquering hero welcome to his native land?

It is not necessary to deny, and it would be untruthful to deny, Theodore Roosevelt abundant personal integrity, cleanliness and courage. They are not uncommon virtues. Nor is it fair to challenge his patriotism. His ability as a practical politician has long been conceded. In the day of their highest efficiency he could dance all around Platt and Quay, the one of whom he turned down remorselessly after he had used for all he had been worth, the other of whom, whilst he lived his closest friend, died before his time had come and his overthrow was deemed essential to the cause of righteousness.

That the peace which he brought about between Russia and Japan was a world-compelling stroke at once of genius and good fortune attests his originality and his audacity. That the country would listen to him when it turned a deaf ear to Bryan, and that, as a consequence, the house-cleaning upheaval through which we are passing is mainly his work, attests at once and the same time his capacity to preach and his hold upon the people. It is these things which make him dangerous; because nothing can be more undesirable than audacity in a chief magistrate, whilst preaching, which cannot be translated into acts of Congress—of doubtful virtue where it can be—presently degenerates into scolding, with more or less of cant and an over increasing love of agitation. Not one of President Roosevelt's sermons got into the statutes in all the seven years of his incumbency; not one of the malefactors whom he so savagely denounced got into prison; and not a dollar of the high protective duties was taken off the tariff, which, for all his courage, he did not dare to tackle.

We need not recall the personal quarrels and angry collisions, the restless and heedless impatience of restraint, the interference with the courts of law, the sometime screaming which cast a momentary doubt upon his sanity, which characterized his last four years in the White House. But his return there would mean only that we approve and confirm them and authorize him to resume and continue the same treatment of the distempers of which the country complains. The notion that he is "the most democratic of Americans," which so often appears in our newspaper quotations, is the reverse of his real character, and was contradicted by his whole habit and proceeding whilst he was President. He is by birth, breeding and instinct a patrician. He was the first to introduce royal costume into the White House. He is a man self-willed to the last degree; bent upon having his own way, not allowing any obstruction—of principle, of law, or of prudence—to come between him and his objective point. Humanitarian, certainly, as long as humanitarianism be the cue to the time; but equally ready for war as for peace, in case war be necessary to maintain his ascendancy; a benevolent despot, who will not hesitate to knock down and drag out, if need require, for sake of righteousness; firmly believing that the earth belongs to the saints and that he and his are the saints.

No man who knows Theodore Roosevelt can gainsay this picture. He who fancies that there is nothing in putting aside the third term tradition set by Washington, followed by Jefferson, contrived by Jackson, which the Republican party itself refused to put aside in favor of Grant, would not be disturbed in his hunch and hunch by an earthquake. To lift the time-limit and to place Theodore Roosevelt back in office is only a single door removed from life-tenure. The crying need in 1912 would become the commanding need in 1916. By 1920 the machinery and momentum of the personal government thus decreed and established and perfected would be irresistible. The American who cannot see this is unworthy of freedom. He should be deprived of the right to vote and be relegated to the cotton field with Simon Legree for a master. We may rejoice in the social honors heaped upon our wandering Ulysses; he proud of the way he carries himself; applaud him when he speaks by card and to the purpose; but return him to the White House never. There is treason to our free institutions in the very thought.

If, as the Courier-Journal has already said, we want a benevolent despotism, Theodore Roosevelt is the man for the job. If we are tired of constitutional restraints, and unwilling to go forward with the fulfillment of our admirable system of checks and balances, let us by all means recall him to the helm. But let us not be deluded by the cant about "doing things" and the humbug about a "second elective term."

It is not a question of "imperialism." Talk of "scepters" and "crowns" is the idlest of chatter. What use had Caesar for a crown, Cromwell for a throne? In the beginning they too were sincere, patriotic, upright men. Invested by the universal favor of the people with supreme command, each proved false to the principle upon which he had risen. Crowns and scepters, the outer insignia of royalty, are as useless to our modern life as chain armor; but power, autocratic power, self-perpetuating power, is as easy within the reach of a President of the United States, personally commissioned because a popular hero and idol, and relieved of obligation as to time, as it was within the reach of Caesar, of Cromwell and of Diaz, all of them in their way able and in many respects beneficent rulers.—From the Louisville Courier-Journal Dem.

MASSACHUSETTS AND THE OWLS

Boston, April 27.—That the order of Owls is illegally doing an insurance business in this state and that it must forthwith cease was the purport of a letter signed yesterday by Insurance Commissioner Hardison and addressed to John W. Talbot, South Bend, Ind., supreme president of the order.

The commissioner's action is based upon information secured by W. O. Richardson, the department's expert, handling the operations of fraternal orders, following the complaints of Col. Roger F. Scannell and other members of the order.

The penalty for disregarding the notification of the insurance department is fine or imprisonment or both, unless an injunction is secured restraining the insurance commissioner from so acting.

It is stated that the members of the Massachusetts nest have lost about $10,000. A movement is on foot to reorganize the order, and a draft of the proposed reorganization is now before the legislature.

FRESHMEN OUTWIT SOPHS

One of the Liveliest in Years Taken Place at Dartmouth

Hanover, April 27.—The freshman class of Dartmouth completely outwitted the sophomores Tuesday afternoon, and had their class pictures taken on the hill above Faculty pond. After the picture was taken a horde of 1912 men appeared on the scene, and one of the liveliest class scraps that has taken place in recent years occurred.

One sophomore was ducked in Faculty pond, which was the beginning of a rough and tumble fight, which lasted till both classes reached the pond.

WESTON'S WALK

Will Wind Up at New York on Saturday

New York, April 27.—Mayor Gaynor on Tuesday granted permission for Weston to tramp triumphantly down Broadway with an escort of police, when he arrives here the last of this week. It is expected that he will reach the upper part of the city Friday afternoon, seventy-five days after his start from Los Angeles, 3400 miles away, and fifteen days ahead of his schedule.

He will enter the city over the old Boston and Albany post road, and will cross King's bridge, being met there by an escort of mounted police. At Broadway and Seventy-Second street, on the march south, the escort will be augmented by policemen on foot, old members of Company B, Seventh regiment, N. Y. N. G., of which Weston was formerly a member, and a band of twenty pieces. Efforts have been made to induce the authorities at Governor's Island to allow four squad of infantry to join the escort, but no decision had been reached last night.

Down crowded Broadway, through lanes of cheering spectators, Weston will make his way to the city hall, where he will be received by Mayor Gaynor. He will present his honor a letter from the mayor of Los Angeles, and his walk will have officially been completed. A purse subscribed by admirers will then be given him and the ceremony will end.

AFTER 13 YEARS

A Letter from Boston Reaches its Destination at Milford, N. N.

Milford, April 27.—It has taken 13 years for a letter mailed at Boston to reach the party it was directed to here. In January, 1897, a letter was mailed to Ralph T. Chase, Milford, N. H. The envelope shows it was stamped at the Boston postoffice and another imprint shows that it was received here.

The envelope was a small one and it worked back in its receptacle in the local postoffice until it disappeared behind a partition.

Some years ago, to make room for a new postoffice outfit, the old fittings were removed and stored away. Recently Spurgeon Cuthbertson, station agent on the Fitchburg branch, purchased a portion of the fittings, and in separating some of the boards found the letter.

He at once sought out Ralph T. Chase, who is now 19 years old. He was six when the letter was mailed to him. It was a note from a friend in Boston, telling him of pleasures in store for him. He is going to frame the long-lost letter.

JAPAN WATCHES NEWPORT TESTS

Mysterious Man Keeps Tabs on Burger Boat's Work

Newport, R. I., April 27.—Whether or not the Japanese Government is contemplating the building or purchase of sub-surface torpedo boats of the Burger type is not known, but it is known that the trials the Burger boat has had recently at Newport have been closely watched by a strange Japanese.

This visitor arrived in Newport last Friday, evidently from New York and departed yesterday afternoon after the Naval Trial and Inspection board had decided to postpone further trials of the boat until later in the summer.

He said nothing while in Newport, but his interest in the performances of the boat gave the impression that he came to Newport to see what the new type of war craft could do.

FLOUR SOLD SHORTWEIGHT

300,000 Barrels Used in Washington Declared to Be Below Standard

Washington, April 29.—Shortweight packages, and secret agreements between wholesalers and retailers are largely responsible for the high cost of living, according to statements of witnesses on Tuesday before the House committee investigating the subject.

Dr. William C. Woodward, health officer of the District of Columbia, told of shortweight bread, flour and other necessities of life.

Col. W. C. Haskell, superintendent of weights and measures, declared that everyone of the 300,000 barrels of flour sold in Washington were short four pounds each of the advertised weight, and that Washingtonians were paying annually $42,000 for flour which they never received.

MEAT TRUST UNDER NEW FIRE

Savannah, Ga., April 27.—It is authoritatively stated that the purpose of convening the United States grand jury here today is to probe the Meat Trust, so called, and not to probe the cotton pool, as was at first announced.

Concord, April 27.—The commander of the state department of the Grand Army of the Republic, A. D. Scovell of Manchester, in his general orders, No. 1, announces the following appointments of his official staff: Assistant adjutant general, Frank Battles, post 2, Concord.

Assistant quartermaster general, Thomas Entwistle, post 1, Portsmouth. Judge advocate, Ellisha M. Kenaploc, post 10, Newport.

Department Inspector, Josiah A. Dammun, post 2, Concord. Chief mustering officer, William Ladd Dodge, post 78, Hampton. Patriotic instructor, David E. Proctor, post 71, Wilton.

Senior aide de camp, Ormond D. Kimball, post 3, Manchester.

BEAR NEARLY KILLS KEEPER

Animal in Park Fights Against Posing with Cubs for Picture

New York, April 27.—With his body badly torn and mangled by teeth and claws, and his left arm almost torn from its socket, Richard Spicer, a keeper at the Bronx Park Zoo, was rescued unconscious Tuesday from the bear pit after a desperate struggle with an angry bear. His condition is critical.

Elwyn Sandhorn, a photographer, escaped from the pit with minor hurts after a hard fight with the animal.

Spicer attempted to make the bear sit up and pose for a photograph with her cubs and she sprang upon him. Dealing him a terrific blow with her paw, she then seized him by the arm and dragged him into the den, clawing and mauling him.

Sandhorn grabbed an iron bar and rushed to the rescue of Spicer, who was unconscious, but the bear turned on him. The photographer, however, managed to fight her off with the bar until the cries of 100 spectators brought other attendants, who beat off the bear and rescued the imperilled man.

SOME VESSEL LOST

Part of Deck Washed Ashore at Block Island

Newport, R. I., April 27.—The finding last night of a portion of a vessel's deck near Graves' Point increased the fears that some craft has been wrecked in the vicinity of Block island sound. For the past four days members of the life saving crews on both sides of the sound have reported finding wreckage such as might have come from the decks of a vessel. It was thought possible that this debris had been washed off and that the vessel itself came to no harm. But this latest discovery, which comprises about ten feet of a vessel's deck, leaves little doubt of a serious mishap. Should this be true, it is probable that loss of life accompanied the accident, as otherwise the matter must have become known by now.

CHANCE REVEALS $100,000 GEMS

Foot Accidentally Strikes Spring in Mrs. Moss' Home

New York, April 27.—The mysterious disappearance of $100,000 worth of jewels of the late Mrs. Theodore Octavia Moss, widow of the theatrical manager, has been cleared up by a freak of chance.

The missing jewel collection was revealed by the accidental striking of a foot on a secret spring which released a door in a pedestal in the home of Mrs. Moss in Madison avenue. There, in the recess, was a dazzling array of gems.

LET IT BE SAFE

Isn't it about time for Portsmouth to join the procession and declare for a safe and sane 4th of July?

We are going to have a city full of the sons and daughters coming home and the grandchildren seeing the old homestead, and we want them to see that Portsmouth is up with the times.

Let them have a boisterous greeting, even, but show them that Portsmouth is solicitous for the lives of her children, for their health and their lifelong happiness.

There will be some hundreds killed and some thousands maimed in the United States on the 4th, besides some millions of dollars' worth of property destroyed. Let us prevent Portsmouth figuring in the fire and accident columns on the day when her children come home.

JUSTICE HUGHES

Since Abraham Lincoln appointed Salmon P. Chase to the supreme court of the United States there had been no man appointed to that court who had a widespread popular reputation till President Taft this week named Governor Charles E. Hughes of New York. Several of the appointees in that time have been well known, and among them may be mentioned Justices McKenna, Day and Moody of the present court, who were previously cabinet officers.

As governor of New York Mr. Hughes is the only man since the Civil war to obtain a re-election unless we are mistaken. The republicans of the middle west found him their strongest stump speaker in the last presidential campaign. He has gained a reputation for square dealing such as has been held by no other of the really eminent statesmen since Lincoln. He has played no favorites.

To him New York owes its public service commissions which were utterly opposed by the public service corporations of the Empire state. He vetoed a railroad rate bill on the ground that the work of such a measure should be done by the public service commission. Those instances are examples. He has gone straight ahead, regardless of whether Tom on his left or Dick on his right might approve or disapprove.

As a lawyer no one questions that his attainments fit him for the supreme bench. As a man, his character is above reproach. As a citizen and a statesman he has gone far in the work of protecting the people against possible rapacity of those in positions of power, and at the same time has been careful not to encroach upon the rights of those whom his statesmanship opposed.

The supreme bench gets what it has long needed, and has not had in half a century, a great constructive statesman, and gets him in the prime of life when he probably will have many more years of usefulness. Mr. Hughes' opposition to the income tax amendment to the United States constitution, in its present form, is one of the notable acts of his career. That income tax proposition is one of the personally supported measures of President Taft and it shows the true magnanimity of our president in looking at the personal qualifications of the man, rather than as to how he stands on this on the question.

It is not unlikely that Mr. Hughes would have been president if he had refused this appointment, and for that reason many will regret his acceptance.

BIRDBEYE VIEWS

Halley's comet has passed its nearest to the sun and, of course, has already begun to diminish in brightness. The old comet is a disappointment. It is evidently pretty nearly worn out.

Senator Hale of Maine is credited with saying that should the Democrats have control of the next Congress a "free tariff" bill would be passed. Without questioning whether or not there could be such a thing as a "free" tariff bill, it may be sufficient to say that there are few Democrats in or out of congress who would favor absolute free trade. Our necessity for revenue is increasing.

The Old Home Week idea is to be extended to Ireland this summer. If the movement organized by Mr. Francis A. Kilkenny, a government official at Washington, shall prove successful, Mr. Kilkenny has formed the Irish Home Going Association, composed of Irishmen living in this country, and is said to have awakened country-wide interest in it. He is confident that it will draw back to Ireland in a single season a larger number of absent ones than have returned in many years. There is no money in it for him or anybody else—nothing but the joy which the true Irishman feels upon returning to the land of his birth even for a brief visit.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

The Hughes Appointment

What New York loses the nation gains many times over by the appointment of Governor Hughes to be associate justice of the United States supreme court.

Mr. Taft could not have made a better or a more popular selection. He could have found nobody capable of commanding a larger measure of professional and popular confidence. It is not merely that lawyers regard Mr. Hughes as a lawyer of the first rank, or that as governor of New York he has shown in a very high degree the temperament of a great judge, but in every part of the country Mr. Hughes is looked upon by Republicans and Democrats alike as a progressive statesman and a fearless champion of public rights against special privilege. The choice of Mr. Hughes as the successor to Justice Brewer will go far toward restoring popular confidence in the Taft administration.

While the world regrets the governor's retirement from active politics, he will enter upon an even larger field of usefulness than any he has yet occupied. The power and influence of the United States supreme court have increased steadily for more a century, and must continue to increase as the business of government becomes more complicated and the great constitutional questions presented for adjudication touch more intimately the daily lives of the American people.

There is no other branch of the government in which a man of exceptional force and character and idealism can exert a more permanent influence upon republican institutions. Mr. Taft is looking forward to "twenty-two years of solid usefulness" on the part of Mr. Hughes as a justice of the supreme court, and this "solid usefulness" may be quite as enduring as the work of a Marshall or a Story.

In these circumstances New York's loss becomes incidental and trivial. Governor Hughes will not retire from his present office until the second week of October. By that time the record of his administration will have been practically completed. He has already taken his place as the ablest governor New York has had since Samuel J. Tilden, and the one who has done the most toward purifying the state government and reestablishing the rule of the people.

It is an excellent thing for republican institutions that such a man should proceed from the executive chair to the Supreme bench, to ad-

Fitting Out the Motor Boat

You can now think of painting; a good shade of bronze green is an excellent color. You should have rubbed the paint work of the engine down with glass paper when you were cleaning it, and you can now apply some good lead color of the shade required, mixed with gold size, and finish with the best enamel you know of. Go over exhaust pipes and parts that get hot with blacklead, and finally pick out the nuts with black enamel. It is preferable to obliterate all trace of aluminum paint from your engine room, and don't use fancy colors, such as red or yellow for plating out.

You now have the engine in working order ready to start, and you can turn your attention to other matters, starting perhaps with that much neglected article, the fuel tank. You will know if it is leaking or not; if it is, however small the leak may be, solder it up. Take off the fuel pipe and the filter and wash the tank out with some kerosene to remove any scale or dirt that may have collected and replace the fittings. If you are going to make a joint under a flange in a gasoline tank you can use some good rubber insertion, that is, rubber and canvas; it will get soft and tender; but it will make an excellent joint. Asbestos boiled in soap, cotton yarn, lamp wick, or felt treated in this manner will make an excellent joint for either kerosene or gasoline. The way to proceed is to shroud up some best yellow soap and dissolve it in water in an old saucepan and then boil till the water has nearly all gone, immerse the fabric you require to treat, let it boil for a few minutes, then allow the whole to get cold. On digging out the packing it will be found to be impregnated with soap, and it is well to keep some by you in case of accidents. Artificial cork sheet is good, or even linoleum with the canvas removed will be found excellent.

Now remove all the water pipes and take them, as well as the fuel pipes, to the nearest boiler and give them a good scour out with steam, immediately afterward connect them up so that dirt cannot accumulate, and test the installation for leaks by putting a little fuel in the tank.

The muffler should be examined in order to see if there is an accumulation of salt, if it is of the wet variety. If, however, it is simply a water jacketed job, test for leaks from the jacket to the interior, for a little water will cause more deposit sometimes than the whole of the water supply. Be sure that all drains, etc., are free and that the exhaust terminal is secure and watertight.

I should have mentioned, in dealing with the circulating water, that the water intake, together with the intake filter, must be overhauled and examined. Should it happen that you have not been supplied with an intake filter, one should be procured and installed.

There now only remains the propeller shaft, propeller and stuffing box to look after. As the shaft is out of the water you can examine the propeller and ascertain if it is still fast on to the shaft. If not, take it off, remove the feather, and fit it properly to the cone. It may be that it has distorted and does not fit properly, so "scrape and tug" till it marks well all over the cone and boss. Now try the nut on and see that it comes right home, and that the washer bears all around the boss without having to heave the nut up. You can then see that the feather does not bind at the top, where it should be just free, though of course it must fit sideways. See that the tail-shaft bearing is in good order and repack the stuffing box with hemp and tallow, then you can (after you have noted that the whole shaft including the engine coupling, runs true) ascertain if the two halves of the coupling come up properly. This is just for curiosity, as you must leave them apart till the boat has been in the water for a few hours, then bring them together and do not allow any error to pass, but pack up the engine, if required, so that the coupling comes together as near as it is possible to get it with a 0.01 feeler.

In starting up go to work very carefully step by step. Leave nothing to chance, and do not consider you are ready till every spare tool is in its place and you have copied out your report, in which you should have noted every fault and every point that requires watching.

(The End.)

Democratic Overconfidence

It is almost pathetic to contemplate at this time the rejoicings of the democratic rank and file over the election of Mr. Foss in Massachusetts and the defeat in New York of Mr. Aldridge. They see in these two events a final consummation of republican downfall and appraise the retirement of Messrs. Hale and Aldrich as contributory testimony. Neither personal nor local considerations affect their ecstasy. The republican party is consigned to the denunciation howl, and a triumphant democracy, long banished, though unjustly, from the fount of emolument and perquisite, to say nothing of the minor issue of power and authority, is now on top with all banners waving. It is all over but the shouting! We do not say that the republican party is secure, far from it; but we do say that if democracy approaches it with overconfidence, interprets its misfortunes as an abandonment of principle and an expelling of despair and resignation, the ex-democratic party is doomed to bitter disappointment. In New York and New England at least republican voters are to some extent independent. Smarting under a sense of wrong, moral or economic, they are quite capable of temporary disaffection. They have shown it in Massachusetts and in New York, but their protest has not been against republicanism as they understand it. They have protested against republicanism as they do not understand it.—New York Sun.

EASTER SERVICE AT CHRIST CHURCH

Throughout the Holy Catholic Orthodox churches of the East, the observance of the Feast of Easter will this year be kept Sunday next, May 1st. Many of the local members of those churches, Russians, Greeks and Syrians will spend the day in those cities near at hand where they have churches of their own. Those who remain in town will attend services at Christ church and have asked the rector to have the music and ceremonial belonging to the great "Day of Resurrection."

The music and ritual at the 10.30 a. m. Holy Eucharist on Sunday next will be for Easter. An orchestra will assist the organist, W. W. McIntire, and the vested choir in rendering the special program.

THEIR FIRST ANNUAL BALL

The first annual dance of the Camp Schley, United Spanish War Veterans, was held at Freeman's hall, on Tuesday evening, and it was a great success. There was a big crowd present, the music was good and the list of dances afforded a chance for everybody to enjoy themselves.

The hall was very prettily decorated, the members of the camp having secured the loan of a large number of signal flags and bunting that was artistically draped about the big hall. The Portsmouth city band orchestra, Director Devine, rendered a very pleasing concert program and played for the dancing.

The grand march was led by Commander John Doyle, with National Aide Mrs. Margaret Kelley, followed by Vice Commander Thomas and Mrs. Clifford, president of the ladies' auxiliary, and seventy-five couples.

Dancing was enjoyed until midnight and the crowd remained until the very last dance.

The officers of the dance were: Floor director, John Doyle; Assistant floor director, Arthur Thomas.

Aides, Samuel Shields, John Forden, I. H. Clifford, J. Renner, M. J. Maher and Owen J. Mooney.

The officers of the camp are: Commander, John Doyle; Senior Vice Commander, Charles Baugay; Junior Vice Commander, John Regan; Chaplain, George O. Lane; Surgeon, John Forden; Officer of the Day, Charles Hood; Officer of the Guard, John Morrissey.

The camp had as special guests Captain F. T. Harriman and Lieut. C. O. Bodwell, of the First Company, Coast Artillery.

ONE MOMENT PLEASE!

Electric Sign advertising is no longer an experiment. The most successful firms of world-wide reputation as well as the stores with whom we have done business give us facts that prove the advertising worth of Electric Signs to be far in excess of any method of advertising that has ever been devised for the amount expended.

Look for the most enterprising city of today and you will find one that uses Electric Signs on all available locations and where merchants appreciate the advertising value and use light. I am making and selling the best signs that can be produced, not the cheapest, but signs that will stand up and give service for years. Recent inventions have reduced the cost and also the cost of maintaining. Public spirit and civic pride demand well lighted business sections in our cities, why not do your part with a well lighted, artistic Electric Sign and increase your business as well.

I charge nothing for estimates or sketches and am always willing to explain details and serve your interests. Respectfully yours,

KILLED ON THE RAILROAD TRACK

W. T. Bryson of Lawrence Struck
By Engine and Dies Shortly After.

A young man, supposed to be William T. Bryson of 62 Union Street, Lawrence, Mass., was struck by the engine of the Dover train in the railroad yard, shortly after three o'clock on Tuesday afternoon and received injuries from which he died a short time after at the Cottage hospital.

The accident happened as the Dover branch engine was returning from the coal shed on the way up the yard, and the unfortunate young man evidently not seeing the engine, walked directly on the track and was struck before the engineer could stop the engine.

Bryson was horribly injured, his right leg and arm being almost severed from his body, and he was otherwise badly cut up. The ambulance was called and the young fellow was rushed to the Cottage hospital, where he was attended by Drs. J. J. Berry and J. W. Parsons, but he died a few minutes after reaching the operating room.

The identity of the unfortunate man was gained from a prayer book, which contained the name and address noted above. The Lawrence police were notified and asked to look the address up. They found that Bryson lived at that address and was missing. The description of the man killed and Bryson fit. The dead man was about 22 years old, 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighed about 160 pounds and wore a dark suit, blue cap and gray shirt. Two other men were with Bryson just before he got struck.

A TEMPLE OF PEACE Has Been Dedicated at Washington

Washington, April 27.—The $1,000,000 marble palace of the International Union of American Republics, made possible by the $750,000 gift of Andrew Carnegie, was dedicated on Tuesday in the name of universal peace in the presence of President Taft and one of the most distinguished gatherings which could be held at this time in America.

Mr. Taft joined with Mr. Carnegie, Secretary of State Knox, Senator Root and Senor de la Barra, the Mexican ambassador, who spoke as the representative of the Latin-American republics, in prophecies of enduring peace among the 21 American republics.

All the speakers pledged themselves always to strive to bring about the most cordial relations.

Mr. Carnegie expressed the hope that some day Canada, with the consent of Great Britain, would join the family of peaceful American republics.

With its splendid location at the edge of Potomac park and the White House grounds, its imposing marble facade, its quaint Spanish effect and elaborately furnished Hall of the Republics, the new building won the admiration of all the distinguished company that passed within the bronze grilles portals, both at the dedicatory exercises in the afternoon and reception last night, at which President Taft and Mr. Carnegie headed the receiving party.

"I esteem it a great honor to the United States of America," said President Taft at the dedicatory exercises, "that the other 20 American republics should decide that this home of the international union should be here on this soil. As the older sister of the other republics we take great pride in that fact. As the older sister we also are anxious that each member of the family should know that we believe in absolute equality in every member of the family. There is nothing in preference that we insist upon because of the fact that we are the older nation and for the time being can count more noses."

The international and local appreciation of the significance of the dedication of this diplomatic palace was abundantly proved by the presence at the exercises as participants in the program of the president of the United States, the secretary of state, the Mexican ambassador, Cardinal Gibbons, Senator Blinn Root, Andrew Carnegie, Bishop Harding, Director John Barrett, members of the diplomatic corps, of the supreme court, and the cabinet, as well as senators and representatives of the national congress, high army and navy officers and a long list of distinguished men and women.

At night the governing board of the bureau and the director gave a reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie, which was attended by the president, the diplomatic corps and officers. Altogether it was one of the most brilliant functions of the social season. The music was provided by the marine band.

The ceremonies in the afternoon were initiated by an invocation by Cardinal Gibbons, who was followed by the secretary of state, Philander C. Knox, who delivered the formal opening address, in his capacity of chairman ex-officio the governing board of the International Bureau of the American Republics.

When Cooking is a Pleasure.

When you can go into the kitchen, light the gas and in five minutes have everything boiling, then it's a pleasure to cook. No dirt, smoke or soot; no heat, except at the burner, which as there is practically no radiation, amounts to nothing.

To tell the truth, lady, we think any woman is foolish to swelter over a hot cook stove. And if you only knew how little it costs to do all your work with gas, we don't believe you'd put up without it another day. Why not come in and let us tell you about it.

NAVAL

RESERVE

Washington, April 27.—Representative Pease of Maine, chairman of the House committee on naval affairs, introduced on Monday a bill to provide for a reserve of personnel for the navy affairs, introduced on Monday a bill to provide for a reserve of personnel for the navy and marine corps and for the enrollment of such a reserve. The subject is considered of great importance and is one in which the navy department takes a deep interest.

The draft of the bill was forwarded to the naval affairs committee by Secretary of the Navy Meyer, who quotes from an approved report submitted by the board which drafted the measure.

"The need for a national naval reserve," says the report, "organized and maintained under federal laws and subject to call and control of the president, is imperative in order that in time of war, threatened or actual, the personnel of the navy may be increased to the necessary strength."

"The total number of enlisted men that will be needed at short notice for this purpose at any time, exclusive of the naval militia, will be about 50 per cent. of the regular force, and the number of line officers of the reserve about 50 per cent. of the commissioned line officers of the regular service."

"In time of war the main reliance of the navy for the trained men of this number must be upon the men now in civil life who have served two years or more in the navy and who had been discharged with recommendations for reenlistment. To this number may be added men, seafaring or otherwise, who, by the nature of their calling, may be fitted in some special branch for service afloat."

The bill proposes to limit enrollment as line officers to officers who have resigned from the navy in good standing within ten years; to graduates from the naval academy, who have never been commissioned, but have left the service in good standing within ten years, and to officers of the merchant marine, yachtsmen and other seafaring men who hold masters' certificates for seagoing vessels and naval militia officers who have served four years in the militia and who have been honorably discharged within ten years.

MACKEREL DODGING THE NETS

Giving the Fishermen the Fish Laugh.

Portland, April 27.—Still no word of the big catches from the mackerel fleet in southern waters. The last information received was that there were plenty of fish, but they were dodging the nets and simply would not be caught. The same situation still obtains and hardly a fish is being sent forth. The Gloucester Times has the following to say about conditions:

"To know that there is a lot of fish going, to see them and be unable to catch them, is nothing short of what Sherman said was, to the exasperation of the fishermen and fisherman. In fisherman parlance, they must be 'fit to be tied' just about now."

"Something will break soon, somebody will get fish before long and then, stand from under. Everything

Washington, April 27.—In imitation of their husbands, whose names and deeds are recorded in the Congressional directory, the members of the Congressional club, which is composed of the wives of the national law makers, intend to have a blue-book of their own.

The idea originated with Mrs. Champ Clark, better half of the minority leader of the House of Representatives. Each member of the club has been asked to furnish a biography of herself, and among other questions is asked:

"If thrown on your own resources, what could you do to win a living for yourself?"

A full record of the genealogy and personal achievements is requested.

LIQUOR RAID AT LACONIA

Laconia, April 27.—The largest seizure of liquor made in this city or in Belknap county in more than fifteen years, was the result of a raid on Monday upon a prominent drug store in this city.

The complaint was made by County Solicitor Frank P. Tilton. The plans were carried out with the utmost secrecy. The raiding party consisted of Sheriff Lester, Philbrook, City Marshal Charles A. Harvell, and Officer Theodore H. Sanborn. Entering the place about ten o'clock the officers proceeded to go over the premises carefully. Their search was more successful than they had expected. In the cellar they found quantities of hard stuff in bottles and casks and the seizure was instantly made.

Trucks were in readiness to cart the stuff away, and so much liquor was found in the place that it required three large wagons, loaded heavily, to take care of it.

A hearing was had in police court at 4.30 o'clock in the afternoon before Judge Oscar L. Young and at its conclusion George F. Mallard, John J. Healy and Fred S. Whitten were each held in $200 bonds for the November term of the superior court.

The firm is the George F. Mallard company.

These figures are unprecedented in the history of the colony.

HIT MARK IN ANY WEATHER

Washington, April 27.—Notwithstanding a period of rough weather off the Chesapeake capes that at times made it almost impossible to repair the damage to the targets inflicted by the big shells that passed through them, the Atlantic fleet, under Rear Admiral Schroeder's command, has been doing some record making target practice with the big guns. The admiral's own comment in a wireless message to the navy department is "Scores high; surpassing expectations."

The fleet has now finished the work with the guns so far as it relates to shooting at targets in daylight and has begun the more spectacular practice of night attack and repelling the approach of torpedo boats.

All Saturday night the searchlights of the fleet swept the sea, which was troubled by a strong northwest wind, and whenever a target was picked up by the beams there was a concentration upon it of the fire of the little three inch guns, which are specially mounted for attack upon unarmored craft like torpedo boats. The competition between the crews of the various ships was keen, and the men showed the greatest interest in the work, although it at times subjected them to risk of life, when it came to boarding the sea-swept rafts which carried the targets to the half gale which prevailed.

Indeed, so heavy was the weather that the big tug Apache, which had started out the Norfolk navy yard with material needed to repair the damage to the targets, was obliged to turn back before reaching the fleet. Many of the officers and bluejackets were on deck all through Saturday night imbued with enthusiasm over the splendid work being done. The conditions are exactly those which have been desired by the strategical experts of the department, who know to a nicety what the gunners can do in fair weather, but want to see what can be done in adverse conditions.

Forty-Four Splendid Numbers on the Edison May Program.

What's the use of going to the theatre when you can bring the theatre into your home? That's the question that the May list of Edison Phonograph Records prompts. And it's a natural one, too. Where, for instance, could you go to hear, all at one time, such artists as Carmen Mella, Marguerite Sylva, Blanche Arral, Riccardo Martin and Gustave Huberdeau—all operatic stars of their respective nations? Or such splendid musical talent as Sosa's Band, Victor Herbert's Orchestra, H. Denno Henton and the Vienna Instrumental Quartette? Or such delineators of popular "hits" as Sophie Tucker, Manuel Roman, Ada Jones, Billy Murray, Collins & Harlan and Digby Bell?

It's simply amazing the wealth of selections and standard of talent that the Edison list presents. Everybody—rich or poor, grave or gay—can find something in the forty-four two and four-minute Records to please his taste. Operatic numbers, popular sentimental "hits," the latest "rag" melodies, sacred selections all in bolos duels and quartettes—vaudeville sketches and instrumental gems of various kinds are there in splendid conception to appeal the the most discriminating.

The May list of Edison Records can without exaggeration be classed among the most enviable ever added to the catalogue. To the mind of family who is not aware of the wonderful development and entertaining possibilities of the Edison Phonograph the collection will offer a surprise quite as pleasing as it will be complete.

GIVES A BRIDGE

Three Hundred Thousand Dollars for a New One at Boston

Doston, April 27.—The mystery surrounding the identity of the Harvard alumnus who had offered $300,000 to build a new bridge over the Charles river as an approach to the Stadium, was cleared today when it was learned from a reliable source Larz Anderson '88, of Brookline, was the man.

The proposed bridge would replace the present structure, which has been found inadequate to accommodate the crowds that flock annually to the Stadium for the football and other games. Objections to the new bridge from the war department and a few property owners have been overcome. It is said, and an artistic approach to the big athletic field is now assured.

Announcement that a Harvard alumnus had offered $300,000 for the purpose was made two years ago, but his name was kept a secret until today.

The Scrap Book

A Horrible Death.
 A general Chicago drummer on a visit to Louisville ran into a Louisville Times man. The usually cheerful maintenance of the drummer was so overcast as to prompt inquiry as to the cause of his melancholy.

"Just heard of the death of Joe Hinkle," was the lugubrious reply. "Friend of yours maybe?"

"Nope; just a line-man in Chicago."

"Owe you anything?"

"Nope."

"Well, then, what are you so cut up about?"

"Oh, he died such a horrible death. It was simply awful. I never heard of anything like it."

"How was that?"

"Well, he was a work on the roof of the Masonic temple, and he got too close to the edge and slipped off."

"Thinking of that sheer drop of twenty-one stories, the man around town repressed a violent shudder with both hands."

"Oh, but that had to shoot him, wasn't it the worst of it?" the drummer continued, his sympathetic face working overtime; while great tears stood in his eyes. "The poor poor du-du-du had on his rubber-heel boots!"

"Yes," sympathetically.

"And he had bounced up and down for three days and nights, and they had to shoot him to keep him from starving to death!"

My Prayer.

Great God, I ask thee for no manner gift than that I may not disappoint myself. That in my action I may soar as high as I can now discern with this clear eye. And next in value, which thy kindness lends, That I may greatly disappoint my friends; However they think or hope that it may be. They may not dream how thou'lt disappointed me.

That my weak hand may equal my firm faith. And my life practice more than my tongue's saffly. And my low conduct may not show Nor my retelling lines. That I thy purpose did not know Or overrated thy designs. Henry David Thoreau.

A Million Chads.

A titled Englishman of a literary turn of mind, who was a bit of a sportsman as well as of a hunting expedition into the wilds of Scotland. Meeting with a slight accident which compelled him to remain in a small village for a few days, he went to the village store to search for something to read to while away the time.

As he glanced around the store, he noticed a small array of books poking away on a shelf in an obscure corner. Robert Browning was his favorite author, and, thinking he might be fortunate enough to get a copy of his works, he asked the rather elderly and slow-going storekeeper to look over his shelves and see if he had Browning.

"No," replied the storekeeper as he turned and stared at his shelves. "We haven't. We've got bluing and blacking and whiting and paris green, but I don't see no browning anywhere. Who makes it?"

The Little Chap.

When the late E. H. Harriman completed that wonderful engineering and railroad feat known as the Salt Lake cutoff there was a celebration, and Harriman took a large party of his railroad men out to it, according to the Saturday Evening Post.

They had their pictures taken at the right spot, sculkily. Mr. Harriman stood at one end of the group. When the pictures were printed and the photographer brought them around the railroad men examined them.

"Why," shouted one of the guests, "where's Mr. Harriman?"

"Do you mean that little chap that stood at the end?" asked the photographer. "Why, I cut him off."

A Clear Case of Bunko.

During a performance of "Rip Van Winkle" by the late Joseph Jefferson in New York the manager, standing in the lobby, observed a countryman entering about the entrance in an uncertain way. Finally, as with a determination to go the limit, the countryman bought a ticket and entered the house.

A little while after the manager happened to be in the lobby again, when the countryman came out with an expression of intense disgust upon his face.

"Well, how do you like the show?" the manager inquired, with secret amusement.

"Say, mister," he replied, "I'm a-goin' ter have a mighty hard time explaining ter Marandy what I done with them few dollars, but you kin bet I don't tell her I paid it tew see an old feller fill up on tucker an' go ter sleep when I could a-gone up ter her tavern at her corners, as a-see old Bill Hardtore den it for noblin'."

AT NAVY YARD

To Rush the Wisconsin
out of Commission

Rumor of a Change at Naval Prison

Rush on the Battleship
The Wisconsin was no more than tied up at the dock today when the work of putting her out of commission began. The stores and fittings were rushed to the store houses about the yard. It is certainly a busy scene at the dock when the big sea fighter is tied up.

Getting Busy

The fair weather and the arrival of the U. S. S. Wisconsin started a brisk movement in all quarters about the yard. All day long there was a steady stream of visitors at the station mostly to greet friends on the battleship.

Rumors of a Change

Rumors have it that a change will shortly occur in which Major Leonard, U. S. M. C., will be detached from the duty as commandant at the naval prison, but the same cannot at present be confirmed.

The New Hampshire Next

The U. S. S. New Hampshire is expected to arrive at the yard the last of this week or the first of next.

Part of Marine Guard to Be Left Here

The crew of the U. S. S. Wisconsin will be sent to the North Dakota, Wabash and other ships of the service. Part of the marine guard will be sent to this yard and the rest to Philadelphia.

Officers Invited

The yard officers have received invites to attend the ball of the First Company, Coast Artillery, which occurs in this city next week.

To Tackle Yankee Again

Work on the reclamation of the stranded Yankee will be resumed as soon as the weather permits. That almost forgotten wreck has not been permanently abandoned. The labor of getting her off the rock and taking the ship to the New York navy yard was suspended during the winter, but the contractor—Arbuckle—is determined to accomplish his purpose according to the plans which he had devised. It has now become a matter of professional pride with the engineers in his employ rather than a question of profit, it being realized that whatever money there was in it for the author of the project has long since been dissipated by the expense to which he has been put in the matter and the disasters which have overtaken the work. It is confidently expected that success will ultimately reward with a certain amount of fame the persistence of the contractor. The position of the wreck is an exposed one so far as the elements are concerned and this makes the labor of rescue one of great difficulty.—Army and Navy Register.

Work on the Ferry

The ferry Number 132 will be off the route for a week or longer.

Work Finished in Kittery

The engineering force from the yards and docks have completed the survey for the new bridge location highway at Kittery.

Is the Captain Jealous?

The captain of the Yeast Cake, the famous vessel of the workmen's fleet, is pleased in announcing that more medals for heroism can be found among his crew than any other craft of the squadron. He is afraid that some of the men will injure their health in carrying these souvenirs around with them.

WISCONSIN

Came in Without a Tug
This Morning

The U. S. S. Wisconsin arrived in the lower harbor early this morning and came up to the yard at low water at 8.30.
Thomas E. Evans, master of tugs, was in charge of the vessel and brought her to her berth at the flat iron pier without the assistance of a tug and as gracefully as if he was at the wheel of a naphtha boat.
The vessel has between five hundred and six hundred men aboard, and will go out of commission in about ten days.
Part of her crew were transferred to other ships at New York navy yard.

The advance car for billing will soon arrive here from Newburyport to cover the bill boards, and make other arrangements for the show. The company, it is said, gives a very fine entertainment from beginning to end.

Almost any piano be it ever so cheaply made will give the owner a certain amount of delight. The kind of piano we sell will cause that delight and satisfaction to increase as the years pass by. This is because they are made right, by people who have been making good pianos for nearly half a century. Think of that fact before considering the purchase of an unknown piano especially if it is a low priced one.
The Emerson Piano
never disappoints its owner. It is good at the start and keeps on being good all thro' its long life. You can scarcely find a worn out EMERSON no matter how old. It costs more of course, to build such a piano, but it pays the purchaser every time. Emerson Pianos on easy terms at
